

MARVIN Sandbox

What is the MARVIN Sandbox?

The MARVIN Sandbox is the final phase of testing before go-live on October 9. Please note that this is NOT 'parallel operation' between the legacy system and MARVIN.

MARVIN is not yet live and the Sandbox should never be thought of as production. The data you enter in will be periodically wiped out, and anything you enter in the MARVIN Sandbox will not be in MARVIN Production on October 9. It is intended as a 'playground' for you to get comfortable with the system and to ensure that all processes will work as intended.

You must continue to do ALL of your work in the legacy system until end of day on October 6.

Who should log in?

All MARVIN users are encouraged to log in to the MARVIN Sandbox when they have free time.

When can I log in?

The MARVIN Sandbox is accessible starting August 21 from 6am to 8pm on weekdays, but because it is only a testing environment, it may be periodically unavailable during these times. The MARVIN project team will do its best to notify you in advance of these times.

Why should I log in?

To become more comfortable with MARVIN before you use it for real starting on October 9.

How do I log in?

Open the same desktop shortcut you have been using to view the CBTs. Enter your username and password, and the 6 digit code from your hardware token in the 'security code' box.

Where can I log in from?

You can only use the MARVIN Sandbox from computers that will be used when MARVIN goes live in October. If your office recently installed a new computer, please notify the MARVIN Help Desk at the email below.

How do I get help?

Please contact the expert user in your county if you are not sure where to click or how to find something in MARVIN. If you cannot log in at all, get an error, or a converted vehicle record looks incorrect please contact the MARVIN Helpdesk (MARVINHelpDesk@dor.ms.gov).
